Artists statement

Painted in oils by instinct, this body of work represents a pivotal evolution in my practice. After a spending some time documenting the precise movement of working equitation, and classical dressage, I felt a sudden pull to strip away the riders, the tack, and the tradition, leaving only the raw essence of the animal.

I was drawn to the Lusitano and Andalusian breeds in particular. Something about their presence, their shape, and the depth behind their gaze. They held a stillness that felt older than it looked.

At the time, I wasn't painting myth. I wasn't even sure what I was painting or why, but these horses marked a profound shift: from surface to soul, from observation to communion.

They ceased to be subjects and became the messengers that opened the door to my current figurative work.

About the artist

Mandeigh Wells is a figurative and mythic artist, storyteller in oil, and sacred mischief-maker.

Her medium and large scale oil paintings are created in her rural studio, high up on a windy Scottish hillside.
